THIS IS UNEVALUATED INFORMATION

1. The relations between Russians and Poles are still the same, indirect opposition and hate. As soon as it is dark Soviet soldiers are allowed to stay in town only when in groups. Armed Soviet and Polish guards patrol the town, day and night.
2. There are about 500 Germans still living in BELGARD, 150 to 200 residents of the town; the remainder are Germans from the surrounding area who have been gathered there to await their departure for Germany. Some of them are employed on Polish farms. Some are working for the Soviets (slaughter-house, depot, and workshops).
